Dear Visa Applicant(s):

Thank you for your interest in traveling to the United States. Unfortunately, you do not qualify for a visa under Section 214(b) of the U.S. Immigration and Nationality Act (INA). This decision constitutes a visa denial for both INA and Electronic System for Travel Authorization (ESTA) purposes.

INA 214(b) requires that you demonstrate the intent to abide by all rules and regulations applicable the visa category for which you are applying. All applicants have the burden of proof to establish such intent to the satisfaction of a consular officer. A 214(b) refusal indicates that you did not overcome the presumption of immigrant intent and/or that you failed to demonstrate intent to maintain a residence abroad or refrain from unauthorized activities while in the United States – to include unlawful employment. Concealing, misrepresenting, or falsifying information on a visa application or during interview and/or attempting to assist others to acquire a visa(s) for any of the aforementioned purposes will also result in a 214(b) refusal. Please be aware that visa decisions rest primarily on the responses you provided in your electronic application and during your interview – not on your documents.

Although today's decision cannot be appealed, you may apply again anytime. You should consider re-applying only after your situation significantly changes and/or you can present new evidence that you intend to abide by all U.S. visa and immigration regulations. If you decide to re-apply, you must submit a new DS-160 application, provide a new photo, and pay another fee.

Sincerely,

U.S. Consular Officer
